Mercury Statement

As a leader in design and worldwide manufacture of I/O interconnect products, NorComp is continually monitoring the industry for any concerns that may affect our business and our customer relationships. We understand the concerns involved with the restrictions of Mercury and the affects it can have on our environment.

To this point, NorComp has reviewed our lists of components and materials that we use and receive from outside sources. It does not appear that we are currently using Mercury in any of the materials used in our parts, the final part composition or the manufacturing process.

Complete material disclosures may be requested through your NorComp sales representative or by contacting eng@norcomp.net.
